Jammin' Remember when being caught in your pj's in the middle of the day was a bad thing? These days, stylish sleepwear—which first got a boost when Ally McBeal danced around her living room in sheep-printed flannel from Nick & Nora—is coming out from under the covers. Nighttime fashions from newcomer BedHead have popped up on screen (Friends, Will & Grace) and off (Oprah Winfrey's a fan), while mere mortals snatch them off shelves as elegant lounge-wear. "People are spending more time working from home," notes L.A. fashion advisor Lash Fary. "And they can't just have any old thing on." —Lori L. Thorps
